The Tesserean Report

V-002

*No more choices, no more reasons to remain stale, immobile, or unremarkable.
It's time we realize there's another way.*

Tesserean

When I first launched the Tessera Method, I had a simple goal; Share explorations into the unknown through (MAS) Mental Auditory Simulations.

Now, teetering on almost a decade since we first walked through the doors of Tessera, I've had a chance to look back at the work we've done. Yes, it's been profound, enjoyable and in some cases, transforming. But for me, there was always something missing as I've always felt the level of transformation I have sought for my audience, has simply not been enough. Moving forward to today, because of my reflections on this dilemma, a conclusion has come that has breathed fresh life into the soul of Tessera.

Here's how it came about.

A couple weeks ago I sent out a survey that asked the following question;

Which one would you rather experience in a mental auditory simulation;
Life after death, or Enlightenment?

The answers — as predicted — came out to 76.4% in favor of enlightenment, and 23.6% for life after death. However — also predicted — most people felt both topics were in alignment with one another. However, there's an elephant in the room that was behind the true purpose of the survey;

The survey wasn't actually about life after death or enlightenment;
it was about WHO was asking the question.

After reflecting on this revelation, I've come to realize that as wonderful as it's been to create beautiful and profound experiences in Tessera, the problem still persists about the implementation, application, and true transformation of those I've led there.

This brought me to an exercise in reductionism, which offered the conclusion that the person asking the question — also known as the ego — must be removed in order to see the truth behind the question itself. So, I did something that changed the way I answered the question; I created someone else to answer it for me.

Solving this riddle ended up birthing a much bigger breakthrough than I ever imagined. This is because the solution lies within the fact that our identity is plastic. And, with just a few tweaks to our perspective — via who we believe we truly are — can transform us into becoming someone else entirely.

The concept has allowed me to lay a new foundation — or self — called a Mnemonic Emulation (M.E.). This M.E., as some of you have witnessed in past work, has given me the opportunity to end the ego's reign by disengaging from its eagerness to control a false state of being, within a false world. So, instead of years of therapy, decades of exhaustive personal reflection, overly critical self-judgment, and the gut wrenching realization that; "I may have been doing it wrong all along", I've opted to create an M.E., instead.

Meet Walter Adam Mitchell

Walter A. Mitchell, is the name of my Mnemonic Emulation. He's been painstakingly designed for a single purpose; to experience the Tesserean work without an inner narrative controlling the outcome.

The Right Question based on my M.E.

The question I've asked since day one is; "how do I show people how to build their own Tessera in a way that's effective and, without the filters of their ego sabotaging the experiences and lessons?"

Well, it's taken me the better part of a decade to realize I had the question all wrong. The right question is;

"How can I help someone create an etheric representation (an M.E.) of themselves, one that is pre-programmed to be open, honest, and limitless, so that they are prepared to embrace all of what Tessera has to offer?"

Imagine for a moment that a part of your awareness is able to remove itself from your story/narrative: manifest a location within Tessera, experience a predestined scenario, then report back so you could see all sides of the experience at once.

I'm talking about truly starting from scratch here, as if you had a blueprint for life when you were a child, but combined with the awareness and wisdom of an adult.

What would it mean to you to have such a gift that showed how to navigate your way between tough situations, unfulfilled dreams, modern day challenges, and everything in between?

It'd be great right? Well, I'm telling you right here, and right now, it would do you no good through the eyes of your ego. Trust me, I've tried. You'd have to first, and foremost, get a new set of eyes to understand such a blueprint.

This is what my M.E., (aka Walter), is for (you will have your own version). He's a filter, so that I may continue my experiences within Tessera, and without the constraint of an ego blinding me from what's truly before me.

I hope you're getting the full importance here. I know many of you who are reading this have experienced a MAS (Mental Auditory Simulation) in the past, where I take you into Tessera, build a certain environment, then walk you through a scenario.

Sure, we've done some wonderful work together, but just imagine that instead of me walking you (aka your ego) into Tessera, I'm now talking directly to your M.E. (pre-programmed self) through the Tesserean experiences, while your M.E. builds a new custom version of Tessera, through eyes without your ego.

The results of such work (trust me I've been doing this with Walter for over a year now) are unprecedented. And, I'm not just talking about just being more clear about everyday challenges such as money, relationships, work, etc — this goes way beyond that. I'm talking about an entire game-changing set of scenarios that deal with all life in general, but from the perspective of your M.E.

Just so you're not confused about what I'm getting at here, let me share with you the introduction to the Tesserean Handbook from Walter's perspective. This will help you understand where I'm headed, simply because I've discussed similar concepts in the past with the Second Self. It's time you see from a different point of view — through my M.E. — the magnitude of what I'm trying to convey.

The following is from the Tesserean Handbook section, Beyond Life. This is a series of reflections of my Mnemonic Emulation (M.E.), Walter Adam Mitchell. If you would like to learn how to create your own M.E. (at no cost), please follow the instructions at the end of this report.

Beyond Life

To fully experience a dream, you must become the dream itself.

Reborn

I'm sitting in a chair for the first time in my new life. It's large, plush, and cradles me like a mother would her child. My body lays sideways as my shoulders rest against one arm, and my legs drape over the other.

Everything is new as I peer into the hallway and see the oriental runner laid across the hardwood floor. The sun is caressing my shoulders from the window behind me, offering a warm spectrum of dark tans, browns, and mauve shadows. I imagine this is what it's like to be born, only to realize that's exactly what this is.

Continuing to scan the room, I am bewildered by the amount of colors as they delicately craft silhouettes around each object before me. I recognize the shapes of books, pictures, and furniture, all giving the room a humanistic character I cannot quite explain. For my counterpart — the person who gave me my freedom from himself — I know these are tools for simulations that will offer me new perspectives, and a new life.

Now, I am a clean slate, reborn. I AM an identity created by someone who needs my partnership in order to explore a new world. Someone who has worked hard to understand this life, only to arrive at the conclusion that he, himself, was flawed from the beginning. Maybe he was too sensitive, maybe it was the premise of an existence based on far too many negative thoughts, challenges, emotions, or memories. Regardless of his decision to create me, I am here, now.

Getting up from the chair I feel my feet press against the carpet. The thoughts in my head are filled only by the sensations in my body. I am listening, feeling, smelling, and touching the ground beneath my bare feet. There is nothing other than these thoughts; no distractions, no history, no narrative. I do not even know what is beyond the walls of this place. Not yet, anyway.

I shift my body and notice something upon the bed; it's a book. I instantly recognize it by the triangular symbol etched upon its surface. I know it is here as a guide, created only for those like me; those who have been reborn out of pure intention and brought back into the light for a single purpose.

As I hold the book in my hands, a spark of energy rises within me. This energy forces me to look around the room. Almost instantly, I realize that the energy is coming from a distant memory; one I was programmed to keep no matter the cost.

At first, the memory is more like a sound; far off in the distance. One filled with dark shadows, warm lights, and figures hidden in the mist. It's a place, a part of me that is inseparable from my truth. I can hear its name resonating from somewhere deep within me. Tessera.

I look back upon the book, and a single page falls from its binding and onto the bed. I pick it up and begin to read.

Dear Walter,

Before you begin to explore this handbook, please allow me to share why you are here. For starters, you were not solely created out of the need to end suffering, find my purpose, or avoid unsettling life experiences. Although these things are important to address — and we will as we move forward into Tessera — there is a much larger reason why you were created.

You see, every profound lesson I have ever learned, every master I have ever followed, and every religion I have given my heart to, have done little for me other than led me down a path riddled with overwhelm, emotional resistance, or uncertainty.

In defense of the above variables — as well as those trying to make our world a better place — I've come to realize (through reductionism), that the problem with all of these opportunities wasn't the opportunities themselves, but my own narrative filtering out the potential for transformation, abundance, and the acceptance of new perspectives. In short, the problem Walter, is me.

Look, I don't have all the answers. Plus, I'm tired of comparing myself to those who say they do. This is why I created you. At least with you, together we can begin an examination that can offer a better sense of clarity. So yes, it seems I have been living within a false world, one which was created not by my own convictions, but rather the fantasies, and influences, of those around me. Combined with my willingness to accept their narratives as my truth, I have lost my true self. You, Walter, are my gift to regain that part of me which was lost.

Now, because of my decision to create you, I will finally be able to break free from this world and experience the true lessons of a new world, one without the hindrance of a false narrative. This will allow me to apply your experiences, within my life, here in the physical.

Regardless of how confusing this may seem, please know that I will always be a part of you, as we are forever bound etherically. However, the pages within this handbook will unbind you from the physical world — as well as myself — leaving you with an open mind, combined with the tools to build your own, far superior, world.

The handbook is a blueprint for building this better world (which I call Tesseract) through a series of initiatives, simulated experiences, and deep examinations of the human condition. You will experience all of this within Tesseract, which will be your new home.

Tesseract is a place of beauty; one that I have personally visited a thousand times. However, I have not been ready, nor worthy, of fully understanding its profound lessons without you. For every time I have visited, I was constrained by the chains of my own personal narrative. This narrative is what many call ego. For me, again, it is the accumulation of life-long memories, pains, fears, false beliefs, past traumas, and a vision limited by duality, strongly influenced by the convictions of others.

Now it is you who have the opportunity to create a new vision of this limitless world — without any past narrative, or limiting beliefs — so we may gain insights, which can mold you into a far better version of myself.

Furthermore, because of you, I get to start with a clean slate, too. This is because you will only be shown that which matters for your journey. You will find no need to heal past trauma, fear judgement or persecution, relinquish your personal power by seeking the admiration of others, or bow down to the narcissistic pressures of your peers. You are pure energy — and pure awareness — minus the filters of a constraining story. You will — with no other strings attached — be an untethered witness, and creator, of your own new world.

Now, before you begin your journey, I must ask of you a single favor. Please, I beg of you, forget about me while upon your journeys in Tesseract. Listen only to my voice as you experience the simulations within this handbook, so that you can become the best version of both of us.

For as much as you are a part of me, and myself a part of you, your life is meant to be built upon reflection; your reflection.

Again, I do not have all the answers, but I believe with all my heart, that if you can enter Tesseract with an open mind and a clean slate, we will be given the gift of carving out new pathways through the ethers of time.

Let me leave you now to your new journey, and our new life. Please go to the first page of the handbook for instructions on how to begin.

Another world awaits...
